Deutscher Akademischer Austausch Dienst e.V. (DAAD), Kennedyallee 50, 53175 Bonn, intends to record the online-seminars II (17th November 2020) in the context of the training "IQA-4-Africa – from Pan-African Policy to Practice". The recording also includes storage of the relevant chat including the names of participants. In individual cases, oral and written contributions that are assignable to you may also be recorded if you actively participate in the online-seminar 2. The online-seminar 2 is recorded so that it can be made available to the online-seminar participants (approx. 26 participants) as well as to the general public via the HAQAA2 Website.

We would like to point out that consent to the recording and provision of the recording is voluntary. However, the consent of all participants is required if the recordings are to be made available to participants and the public after the web seminar.

You can obtain more information, specifically about the Controller, the general use of your data and your individual rights under Point III in the privacy notice document.

Declaration of Consent:

I have read the above information and agree to DAAD processing my data for the purposes described above.

I also hereby agree that the operators and users of the above-mentioned platforms/media/websites will be granted access to my data from third countries (outside of the European Economic Area) for the purposes referred to above, even though no level of data protection which is comparable to EU law is guaranteed. Therefore, compliance with the data protection principles under EU law is not guaranteed. As a result, my basic rights and basic freedoms may be infringed and I may incur losses as a result. As a result, it may be more difficult for me to claim my rights under the GDPR (for example information, rectification, erasure, damages) and to engage the assistance of the authorities or the courts.

In case of publication on the Internet, the personal data can be accessed and saved worldwide. The data may also be accessible via search engines. In such a case, it cannot be excluded that other persons or companies will connect the data with other personal data accessible on the Internet and create a personal profile, alter the data or use it for other purposes.

My consent applies until it is revoked, which I can declare at any time in full or in part with effect for the future vis a vis: haqaa@daad.de. No disadvantages arise for me as a result of withdrawal of consent. Data processing which is carried out on the basis of my consent prior to the revocation remains lawful.
