Harmonisation, Accreditation and Quality Assurance in African Higher Education (HAQAA) is an initiative that has set itself the goal of supporting the African partners in developing a harmonised quality assurance and accreditation system at institutional, national, regional and pan-African level.

To date, in line with institutional autonomy, developing an internal quality assurance procedure has been the responsibility of each individual institution. While this approach remains valid, the HAQAA training course entitled 'IQA-4-Africa-From Pan-African Policy to Practice' has been launched in order to support the institutional efforts in this field.

The training component on internal quality assurance is one of HAQAA 2 's activities and is being led by DAAD in collaboration with the strategic regional partners (IUCEA, CAMES, SARUA, CNAQ, NAQAAE, ANAQ-Sup).

The training programme is being developed based on the African Standards and Guidelines for Quality Assurance (ASG-QA) which introduces the various instruments of the PAQAF while at the same time offering a platform, which will enable participants from cohort 4 countries to engage in dialogue with each other as well as with the African and European trainers.

The training programme provides practical advice to institutions when reflecting on the best way to implement an internal quality assurance system. CNAQ believes that the institutions will find this training programme very useful for improving their internal quality management systems.
